Achieving parenthood through the miracle of medicine is complicated. It is the sort of thing one trusts to experts—and in Albuquerque, that's Dr. Jim Thompson, Director of the Fertility Center of New Mexico.

"I have been practicing advanced reproductive medicine in New Mexico for 36 years," says Dr. Thompson, whose innovations include both the first in vitro fertilization pregnancy and the first frozen embryo pregnancy in New Mexico.

The Fertility Center of New Mexico provides a wide range of fertility procedures and services, including in vitro fertilization, egg donation, artificial insemination, male factor infertility, assisted hatching, embryo cryopreservation, fertility preservation, tubal reversal surgery, and more.

Dr. Thompson has been voted by his medical peers as the top Reproductive Doctor in New Mexico for 16 consecutive years per the annual Albuquerque the Magazine survey. Dr. Thompson has also been selected by Child Magazine as Director of one of the top 10 fertility clinics in America. And the Fertility Center is the only fertility practice in New Mexico that is a member of SART, has an onsite PhD lab director, and features state of the art lab equipment such as the time lapse incubator.

"There are no guarantees we can make when it comes to fertility treatments, but we are proud of the success rate we have with our patients," says Dr. Thompson. "It starts with couples who are patient and understanding of the process. Add to that our caring and compassionate staff, and it's a formula for success."

The staff at the Fertility Center of New Mexico has an outstanding record of longevity. The lab director has been there for 25 years, and other staff members have been there for three decades. Dr. Thompson is now seeing a second generation of patients, the daughters of patients he helped many years earlier.

"We feel tremendous satisfaction here at the Fertility Center of New Mexico when we help someone on their journey towards parenthood," reflects Dr. Thompson. "Every day there is joy and happiness, and it puts a big smile on our faces and in our hearts."
